Mediumship is the ability to communicate with spirits who have crossed over into the spirit world, or heaven Mediumship can be done through several forms of communication. A medium may sense a spirit, feel what they looked like or sense what type of personality they had. This is called clairsentience.

Spirit can sometimes be seen with physical eyes, or most commonly through the mind's eye, or third eye. It's actually like replaying a memory in your mind, or daydreaming. This is called clairvoyance.

Hearing spirit is obviously another way of communicating. Spirit can be heard sometimes in the ear, or, more likely than not, in the mind. Hearing spirit is just like talking to yourself, or thinking to yourself. I am clairvoyant, clairaudient and clairsentient.

Mediums have to raise their vibration to communicate with spirit while at the same time, spirit will lower theirs a bit so we can connect.

Although a psychic medium reading is not a cure for grief, it can help ease the pain and bring some relief just knowing your passed loved one is okay. I am the middle person (medium) who receives information and messages from your passed loved ones that can help answer your questions about the afterlife, and assure you that life is eternal.

The spirits provide evidence so that you will recognize it is your loved one communicating as their personality comes through. You will know by their unique sense of humor, serious or even bossy tone and have confidence they are in fact communicating with us during your session. A lot of times, additional spirits may come through to send a message or just to say, "Hi, I'm here and I'm okay".
